

Meet the maker SASHA COMPTON

British artist and designer Sasha Compton's work is diverse and ever-evolving. Growing up in a creative family in Yorkshire and the Isle of Mull, she always knew she would become an artist and was awarded an art scholarship at age 14. Now working from her London studio, she creates one-of-a-kind pieces in limited runs. Her art is freehand, playful, and romantic, often inspired by nature, classical art, mythology, and the joyful moments in life. She applies her expressive brushwork to hand-built ceramics and giclée prints and creates bespoke commissions, including murals, tiles and lampshades. 'I want people to feel the fun I have when I make art, through my bold use of colour and sketchy, illustrative marks. It's never a boring day; I love the challenges my work brings me,' says Sasha. Prices for her work start from £40 for a handmade tile.
